Peace of Mind

By Doris Peeler

What is peace and how shall we define it? The dictionary tells us that peace is “a state of tranquillity or quiet, public order or security, harmony in personal relations, freedom from fears”.

Our own heart tells us that peace is all these and more: peace is the serenity and harmony we obtain when we align to our highest of selves and stand as one with God, creation, the spiritual worlds, the Earth and Elemental kingdoms, bringing them into our life; and into the heart.

The state of tranquillity or quiet is within our grasp. Often you hear people say “I have worked myself into such a state over this problem that I can neither eat nor sleep.” Even in our least logical moments we sometimes admit unconsciously perhaps, that our unstrung state is our own creation. If in-harmony is the product of our own thinking, then surely harmony is the result of our thinking.

We can think calmly and quietly. We can turn our attention to something that we know to be changelessly true in any crisis. We can remind ourselves that there is only one Presence and one Power in the universe. As surely as we do and keep this thought in mind for even a brief period of time, peace will come unreservedly into our minds and hearts.

Choose any thought that helps you and let it repeat itself in the back of your mind like the theme song accompanying a radio program. Let it introduce other thoughts; let it follow them as a conclusion. Let it be a simple little thought, one of the kind that needs little or no remembering, such as there is only one Presence and one Power. One approach might be to say “God is my help in every need, The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want”. Another might be to say “I open my mind to the Universe, I align myself to my higher self and the higher self of all living things” through love. Whatever your approach it will be something meaningful to you. Use it! It will quiet the storms that disturb your soul. It will bring tranquillity into your body and into your worldly affairs if you use it.

Peace is freedom from fear. This kind of peace follows easily the realisation that there is nothing to fear. As you align to the higher aspects of the self, and so empower yourself to work from a position of love, compassion and service you become keenly aware that no matter how threatening things may look, you are no longer isolated but in tune with the universe itself.

Fear lives in a confused mind. By finding that place of inner peace, by holding on to one little thought of faith you have the key to an easy concentration that shuts out all possibility of confusion. Fear can have no place in your mind or life when your trust is in God, your guides and your higher self.

Peace is harmony in personal relations. All your personal relations are controlled by your inner state of harmony or disharmony. Have you not known days when nothing in the world could disturb you? Why? You were happy and serene inside. No outer storm could trouble the still waters of your soul; and nothing did. There have been other times when the slightest thing ruffled your composure instantly. Why? Inside you were not sure of yourself. You had “something on your mind” and it was not something that made your heart sing.

How can you be calm and easy to get along with all the time?

Adopt a central thought that keeps you centred or grounded. Keep that thought in operation at all times. It will keep you calm and tranquil it will free you from fear. It will give you such quiet and peace in your body that health will manifest itself in every part.

Your strength of faith in yourself will inspire faith in others and your confidence in the goodness of God and the power of right and goodness in human affairs will help bring about a better world. Each peaceful life is a mighty factor in building peace in the world.

Thus easily, quietly and surely each one of us can go about the business of having peace in their mind and heart: each one of us can be free from fear; each one of us can be at peace among associates; each one of us can be a centre of peace that will help peace to express itself on a world wide scale.
